Katya Bakat is an actress working on several upcoming film and television projects. She just wrapped a role in the mega budget action feature film, Angel Has Fallen, which stars Gerald Butler, Morgan Freeman, and Nick Nolte. Katya plays a doctor in the film set for release in August 2019 from Summit Entertainment. She also has a starring role in Honeymoon in Paradise, a film about a group of reality contestants looking for love and fame at a luxurious resort set in Saint Lucia. Katya is currently filming a lead role in the fantasy film Empire Queen, where she plays 'Terra Winter'. Later in 2019, Katya begins filming African Mystique, which is about a couple captured by Somali pirates off the coast of Africa. On the small screen, Katya has a lead role in the upcoming series Magic 7 and has filmed for pilot show, Shadow Wolves.

Katya began as a model, doing beauty competitions until she was signed by IMG Models at the age of 14. She has since worked for Paco Rabanne, Armani, Lanvin, L'Oréal, Bulgari Jewelry, Tony Ward Couture, Fernando Alberto Atelier, Lee+Lani Swimwear, and Forever Faded Denim.

It was after her establishing herself as a model that Katya began to find herself gravitating towards acting. She tried her hand at recording a song, which lead her to investigate a burgeoning interest in performance. Katya would go on to pursue studies at the Lee Strasberg Theater and Film Institute, where she pursued her passion for acting further.

A woman with long dark hair is posing nude in a room with a large window and a brick wall. She is standing next to a wooden chair, leaning against it with her right hand. The room is dimly lit, with light coming from the window. The woman is looking down and slightly to the side.

Boudoir photography has many faces and depending on the photographer, it can have a different mood, energy and style. The client always drives the dynamic of the session by defining their own level of comfort and ease. In other words, the client decides how comfortable they feel in front of the camera and what kind of images they are looking for.

Over the course of my professional work, I have encountered women who wished to reveal only a glimpse of their body as well as those who were comfortable with nude posing. Today, I would like to focus on the latter one and explore the beauty of sophisticated nude photography.

Despite it being classified as fine art, nude photography is a controversial matter. Some believe there is something shameful about posing au naturel, others believe it is distasteful and unacceptable. As a photographer and artist, I respectfully disagree with both of these statements. Having worked with this genre for quite some time, I have learned to appreciate the beauty and simplicity of human body in its most elementary and natural form.

For centuries, artists have been fascinated with human body. Back in ancient Greece and Rome, sculptures and paintings of nude individuals decorated public arenas and many of them have survived to this day. As time went by, the issue of using nude subjects in art has become more and more debatable. There is a very fine line between fine art and something more explicit and every photographer must define where that line is.

Nude art photography can be very subtle. A skillful use of light and shadow can create a very intimate ambiance. It can elicit a mysterious and seductive mood without overly explicit imagery. But seduction is rarely ever the goal of nude art photography.

Clothes create barriers and distract; they define us in often very misleading ways. Clothes let us hide behind a façade. A nude human body is the essence of beauty and vulnerability. Something very profound happens when we are striped out of our outer layers. This is where vulnerability begins. It is this vulnerability more than anything else that makes nude art so unique and powerful.
